HORTENSE BATAILLE

COLLABORATION

Hortense Bataille-Watkins lives and works in Marseille. After studying at the École des Beaux-Arts de Caen and in several Parisian studios, she spent seven years in the United States deepening her practice of watercolor, oil painting, and dry pastel alongside renowned American and Spanish painters such as Sebastian Cappela, Joan Grine, and Wolf Kahn.

Her work plays with light and shadow, exploring the intensity and harmony of color. Inspired by nature, she creates paintings that are both abstract and dreamlike, conveying serenity, joy, and vibrant energy.

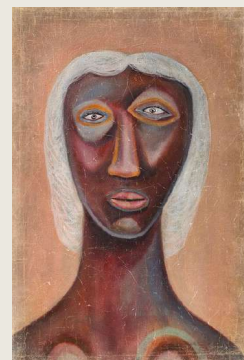

BASUGIART

COLLABORATION

For more than twenty-five years, Indonesian artist Basugiart has been shaping a deeply personal pictorial world, born from a desire to escape the constraints of realism.

Today, many of his works have found a place in private collections around the world.

Working primarily with mixed media, Basugiart explores material, texture, and layering to create vibrant, sensitive compositions. He regularly exhibits his work in Bali and Java, Indonesia, where his art captivates through its energy and authenticity.

SERGE ANTON

"Since childhood, I have been fascinated by faces. I never stop observing them, trying to read them, understand what they express, and decipher their meaning. As a child, I literally felt surrounded by books featuring human faces.

Faces and gazes possess a mysterious quality that truly fascinates me, just as places, natural landscapes, and human architecture do—with their raw, imperfect materials and textures. Mystery is at once synonymous with darkness, depth, discretion, magic, and silence."

BRIGITTE CAZENAVE

COLLABORATION

After studying pharmacy and beginning her career in the field, Brigitte left that path when it became incompatible with a new life in Australia. It was then, in 1983, that she turned to oil painting and trained with demanding teachers in the old-master painting technique.

Her favorite subjects soon became flowers, still lifes, and landscapes.

Over time, she refined these techniques, developing a highly personal approach to painting flowers.

In her representations, she seeks the color and lightness of the flower — leaving no room for correction in her painting.

STEPHANIE LEDOUX

For the past twenty years, St  phanie Ledoux has traveled the world, bringing back 80 sketchbooks that she has filled passionately since her first journeys.

Over time, her love of color and material has driven her to work on an ever-larger scale, moving with skill and subtlety from sketches made on the spot in precarious conditions to gigantic canvases created in the warmth of her studio.

Through the sincere and meticulous testimony she has developed over the years, the artist's body of work takes a contemporary approach while drawing on centuries-old pictorial codes and traditional graphic methods.

THIERRY BISCH

COLLABORATION

Until 2010, Thierry painted animals. After that, he began painting their disappearance. His work is now called "Delete?".

"Delete?" is the ordinary command used to remove text, an image, or a file from a computer. But what will happen when "Delete?" is associated with living species?

The collapse of biodiversity is a central concern for him, and with the support of the Prince Albert II of Monaco Foundation, he works tirelessly to raise public awareness of the sixth mass extinction.

ROBERT LE HEROS ART

Laurent Gelis was born in Toulouse in 1968. In 2019 and 2020, he opened the Robert le Héros Art studio in Rio de Janeiro and then in Toulouse.

His work in Brazil stems from extended periods of study and observation of the surrounding architecture, which he transforms into graphic works made of simple lines and blocks of warm color.

His distinctive color language combines punctual and sign-based colors. The intention is bold, poetic, and resolutely contemporary.

CELINE MASSON

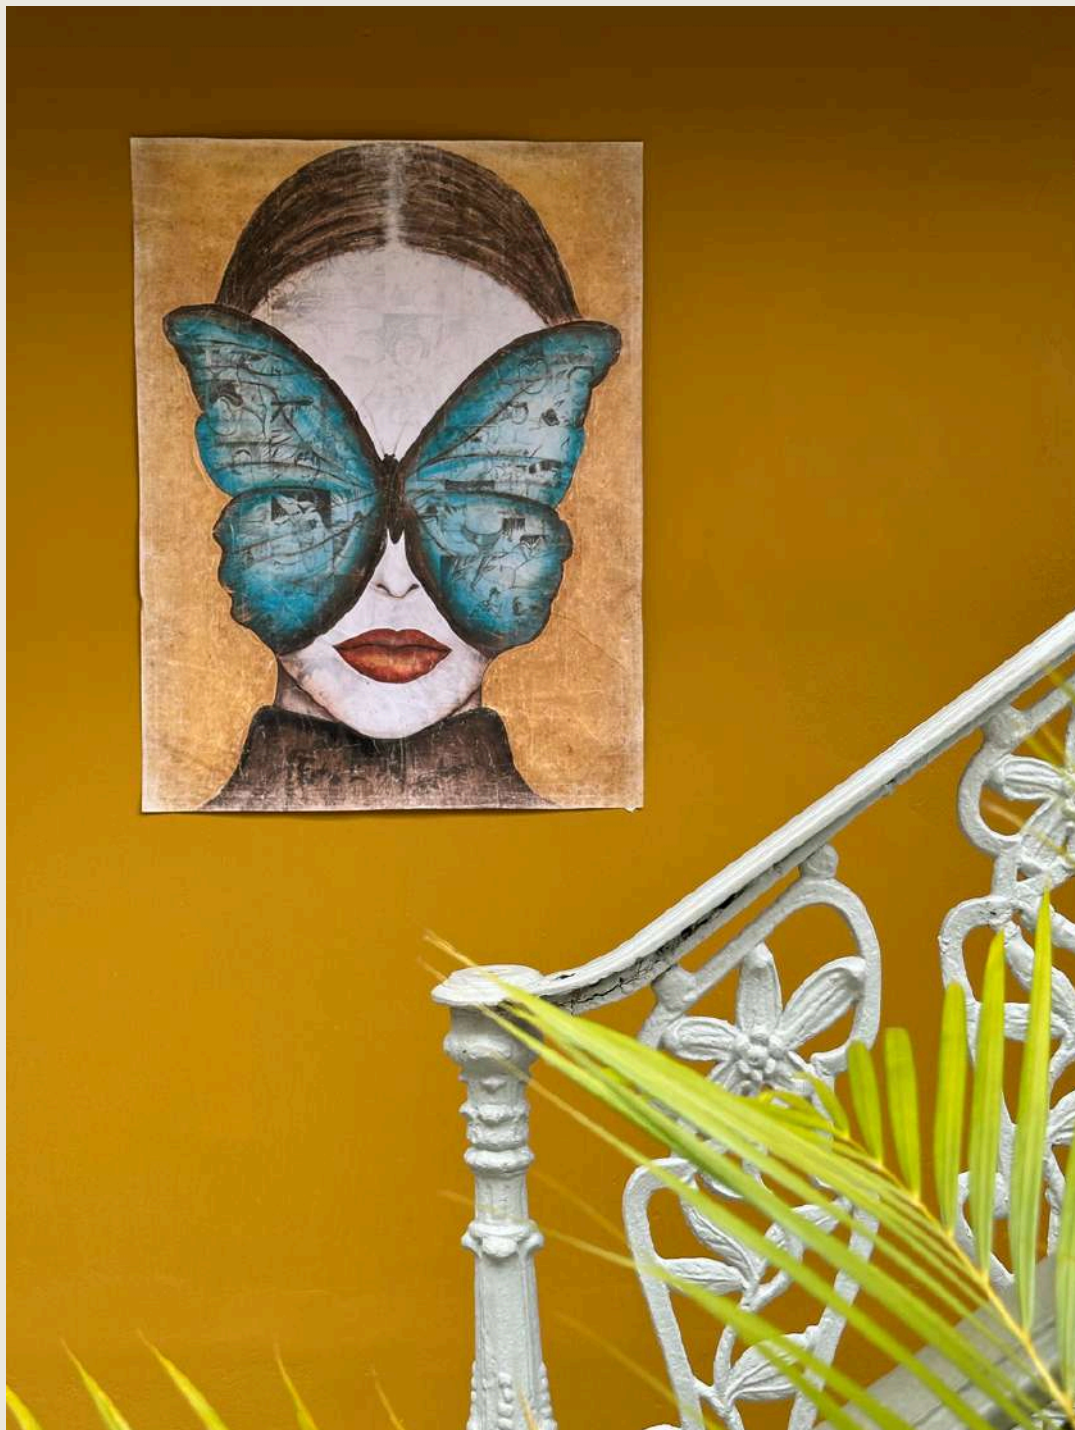

Céline Masson, a contemporary French self-taught artist based in Phuket, has been refining her skills in the Land of Smiles for several years.

A long-time resident of Thailand, Céline deeply and sincerely appreciates the natural beauty of Asian people and cultures. Her art is inspired by Asian female faces.

Before she begins painting, each canvas is covered with original vintage Japanese manga from her own collection. The strength and beauty of the women portrayed in her paintings tell a unique story. Céline's paintings are playful, with bold, powerful colors that bring each character to life.

JEAN DANGE

Jean Dange began his career at Asiatides in 1997 as head of visual identity. He was responsible for collection development and set design.

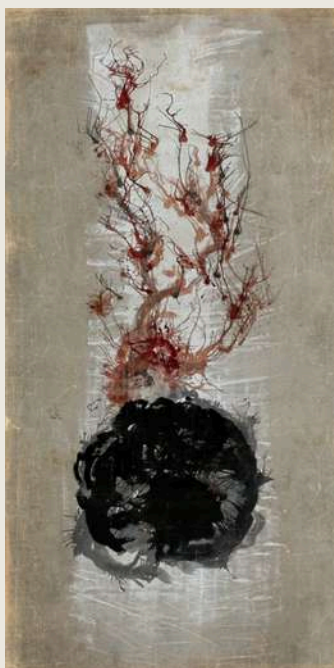

In 2012, he launched his brand, "Curiosity Paris", creating collections of rattan furniture made in Asia.

In 2019, frustrated by entrusting his drawings to others to produce his collections, he created his own collection of lamps and paintings, made in his studio in the Var region of France.

The guiding words of his collections are lightness and poetry.

AQUARELLES BY A.D.

COLLABORATION

A.D. (Angèle), a graduate of the DNA Art program at the École Supérieure des Beaux-Arts de Lyon, combines different techniques. Here, she colors illustrations from 18th-century travel journals using watercolor.

The softness of the colors reinterprets a generous natural world, opening onto reverie as though time were briefly suspended...

ETIENNE VIOLLET

COLLABORATION

Étienne VIOLLET graduated from the Pivaut school in Nantes in 2015, specializing in publishing, press, and illustration. Through his creations, he develops a dreamlike world inspired by nature and inhabited by strange hybrid beings.

He works primarily with ballpoint pen on paper. He later adapts his drawings onto different media, notably paper vases.

Made of paper, yes — but completely waterproof, thanks to a beeswax waterproofing process.

Original pieces, designed and shaped one by one by hand in his studio on the Île de Ré.
